

It appears, from available video evidence, that John Fitzgerald Kennedy was killed by his wife (or by her CIA double). I know, I know you may never have heard this before. The author believes she was placed in her position of future bride, prior to he becoming President of the United States. It was common knowledge that JFK was destined to be elected President at some point in the future. As well, this would not be the first time a potential leader would be later killed by his 'loyal' wife. JFK was not going to follow the Military Industrial Complex's script, he hated Hoover/FBI, he hated secret societies/groups, he encouraged the free press and full disclosure of issues, he was never going to involve the US in Vietnam in the full-blown way it ended up getting involved and Kennedy was probably going to disband the CIA forever. Think about that and where we are today in 2008 for a minute. The antithesis of all that he stood for is that clown W Bush et AL.

Now watch any film of JFK being murdered. The go signal is a black umbrella opening to the right of the motorcade (just below, and in front of the street sign). He was shot from somewhere and suffered some type of wound to his throat/neck (perhaps he was stabbed through the neck by a concealed conspirator in the trunk, regardless, this was the intended injury that allowed her to get closer), the Governor was shot as well (probably by Badge Man/Grassy knoll). Regardless from where, by who, how many bullets, timing of shots, the location of the limousine etc...these shots served a purpose. To cause an audio diversion (and for later at any hearings on the event) so the real assassin could do the job right (one of our page's makes a case for the guilty involved with the distraction AWAY from her actions - we apologize). This ruse provided future protection for the true assassin. It would be the least we could do for her loyalty to the cause. The FBI removed at least one private video showing her participation better, but this video has not seen the light of day.

The secret service agents were pulled away so they would not see her do the deed from that close proximity. Watch her actions. After the President is initially wounded, she attends to him by grabbing his left arm with her left to keep his head up, bring him closer for the kill and keep him tight to her. Look at the very few bystanders on her left-side vantage point – there are very few witnesses and those that are there are hitting the deck or running away from the sounds of distracting rifle fire from elsewhere! Then she reaches into a concealed hide behind them. She pulls out a small revolver (or some type of one bullet firing device), she is constantly staring at the Governor and waits until he and his wife are not looking back at her, she repositions her arm as trained (lays her arm flat in the groove of his spine to control any recoil, leans forward away from her weapon (to avoid powder burns and spray; she probably never shot someone in the head before this), then holds the weapon slightly lower left of center tight against JFK's head. Pulls the trigger. Boom! The bullet travels from lower-back left of his head to the UPPER-RIGHT temple exiting in a directional mist that telegraphs the bullets trajectory. She was most likely shocked at his head exploding like that. Regardless, she immediately drops the gun back into a hidden slot or compartment and pretends/tries to flee her murder seen. My first reaction when fleeing would be to get a hand hold and bail, not drop an object (her hands were empty and waving previously), then bail. A secret service agent corrals her back in (in her panic-acting for the crowd she may drop the gun or give too much away through her academy performance), he hops on the tailgate, checks her right hand with his left and away they go. Watch any film available. You can clearly see her put a small caliber revolver into the hide after she popped him. At close range with fragmenting ammo or conventional ammo (she probably used a Walther PPK) nobody would survive that. This is the reason that his brain went missing never to be found. Any pathologist with morals would immediately realize the path of the bullet and resulting head wound tract do not match the fabricated story.

All of the rest is hocus pocus. A DISTRACTION! Oh and the psychos had Zapruder (on the right side of the Presidential limousine, again for the cover-up that would evolve later)) EXACTLY in place (and the right time; I believe this was a last minute detour from the planned route. How did Zapruder know this?) to make his 'film of the century' of course. Where did we hear that before – documenting the event – oh ya the captured MOSSAD agents and 9 - 11. Sick bastards! The conspirators required/demanded a coup de grâce bullet to the head. A distant head shot was too risky, even by the most skilled marksman (by 1963 standards). They wanted him dead!

Just youtube, dailymotion, livevideo, etc... the Zapruder film, or watch any other available film. Watch her. Not the limo driver, or secret service agents, or Oswald or anything but her. That's all smoke and mirrors. Watch his first wound, then her every move. Watch Jackie O the whole time! It appears, from video evidence, that she murdered her husband - the President of the United States and the father of her children.

Sad world we live in. One driven by greed, secret societies, racists and political ideology mixed up with fascist religion and Straussian philosophy.
